The annual meeting of the McAll auxiliary was held at the home of the president, Miss M. L. Huntington, of Broadway, on Monday afternoon at half pust three. There was a large attendance. The opening exercises were conducted by Mrs. S. H. Howe. A letter written by one of the vice presidents, Miss M. L. Sturtevant, was read. She regretted her absence but sent a check as a testimonial of her interest in the work. After the reports of the secretary, Miss Sarah L. Huntington, and the treasurer, Mrs. S. H. Mayor Thayer thought the people in city meeting overlooked the important fact that they selected men to have charge of just this portion of the city's business, and it seems as though when they, after investigation, report upon a project, the people should give them the money whereby the project can be carried out. Instead they go into a meeting and vote it down. He thought the minority tought not to attempt to the minority tought not to attempt to run a city, but the first attempt came when the citizens' committee was named. That committee found that the water commissioners had done and were doing everything possible. They have given their best thought upon the matter, and the people ought to stand by them. If this proposition is voted down, what will be done next? The meeting, he said, was called with the hope that there would be a good talk on the subject, so that the city meeting, on he proposity informed.
